The appropriate extension fee under 37 CFR 1.17(a) is calculated from: (1) the expiration date of the shortened statutory period for reply originally set in the final Office action; or (2) as set forth in (b) above, if checked. Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of the final rejection, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 12/16/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

A. Applicant argues in the arguments that the prior art teaches away the invention. Arguments that the alleged anticipatory prior art is teaches away the invention' or is not recognized as solving the problem solved by the claimed invention, [are] not germane 'to a rejection under section 102'. Twin Disc, Inc. v. United States, 231 U.S.P.Q. 417, 424 (Ct. Cl. 1986) (quoting In re Self, 671 F.2d 1344, 213 U.S.P.Q. 1, 7 (CCPA 1982)). See also State Contracting & Eng'g Corp. v. Condotte America, Inc., 346 F.3d 1057, 1068, 68 U.S.P.Q.2d 1481, 1488 (Fed. Cir. 2003). (The question of whether a reference is analogous art is not relevant to whether that reference anticipates. A reference may be directed to an entirely different problem than the one addressed by the inventor, or may be from an entirely different field of endeavor than that of the claimed invention, yet the reference is still anticipatory if it explicitly or inherently discloses every limitation recited in the claims.)

B. Applicant argues in the arguments that the prior art fail to teach 'scheduling factors including customer preferences and waste hauler limitations'.

The examiner reminds to the applicants that during patent examination, the pending claims must be "given the broadest reasonable interpretation consistent with the specification." Applicant always has the opportunity to amend the claims during prosecution, and broad interpretation by the examiner reduces the possibility that the claim, once issued, will be interpreted more broadly than is justified. In re Prater, 415 F.2d 1393, 1404-05, 162 U.S.P.Q. 541, 550-51 (CCPA 1969). While the meaning of claims of issued patents are interpreted in light of the specification, prosecution history, prior art and other claims, this is not the mode of claim interpretation to be applied during examination. During examination, the claims must be interpreted as broadly as their terms reasonably allowed. Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 U.S.P.Q.2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993). Little clearly discloses 'scheduling factors including customer preferences (Col. 1, Lines 40-9) and waste hauler limitations (Col. 2, Lines 10-11)'. In Col. 1, Lines 40-65 Little talks about the customer preference as being on a call basis, and on Col. 2, Lines 10-11 Little clearly discloses waste hauler limitations.

C. Applicant argues in the arguments that the prior art fail to teach 'automatically determining optimal time to empty the waste container'. Little discloses 'automatically determining optimal time to empty the waste container' in Col. 1-2, Lines 65-9, where Little discloses the dispatcher evaluates the data to determined fullness and based on these evaluation, the schedules time of pick up and replacement of the container are performed.
